PARENT GUIDE

Before You Begin

- This workbook is designed to build confidence first, not perfection
- Your child does not need neat lines or perfect grip to succeed
- If your child enjoys scribbling or following paths with a finger, they are ready

Practice Frequency & Routine

- Short, happy practice sessions work best:
 - 2-3 pages per day
 - 3-4 days a week
 - Always stop before frustration
- Consistency matters more than speed
- You may print and reuse pages as often as needed

How to Introduce a Worksheet

- Sit beside your child
- Trace once together using a finger
- Use simple instructions
- Allow independent attempts
- Avoid erasing or fixing lines. Learning happens through movement

Beginner: Basic Line Strokes

Purpose?

- Builds hand stability, wrist control and directional awareness
- Helps write half the capital letters (E, F, H, I, L, T) and numbers like 1, 4, 7
- Child develops confidence in holding writing tools

Pencil grip tip

Focus on using the large arm muscles; introduce the grasp concept gently using a short pencil or crayon

Guidance

- Let your child enjoy the movement first
- Praise effort, not neatness
- If your child switches hands or lifts the pencil often, that's normal — they are still exploring muscle control!

Complimentary fine motor activity for the child

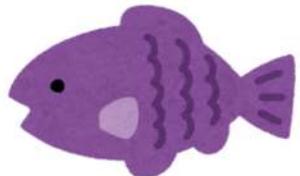

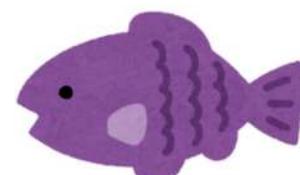

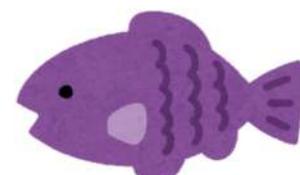

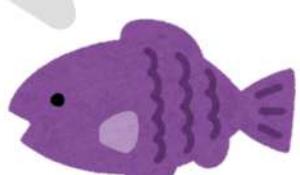

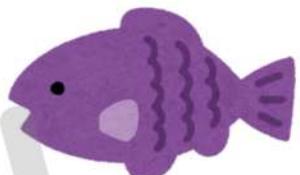

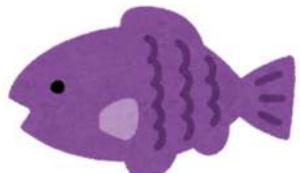

Practice picking up small objects with child-sized tongs to strengthen the pincer grasp

When can I move to the next stage?

Your child can trace straight lines with control and follow the direction of the path

Horizontal Line Tracing

Help Waddle walk on the snowy lines to catch the fishies!

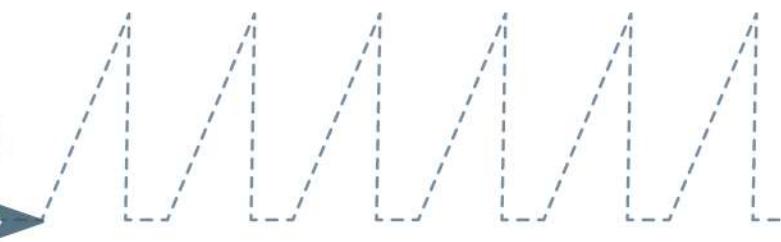

Intermediate: Angles and Directions

- Wide zig zag line tracing
- Tight zig zag line tracing
- Zig zag upward line tracing
- Zig zag downward line tracing
- Zig zag modified line tracing

Zig Zag Modified Line Tracing

Help Waddle climb on the snowy hills!

Intermediate: Angles and Direction complete!

You finished this level! Well done!

Now you can colour the collected snowflake!

Mixed Loop Line Tracing
